

12/6 - 50000.
 1/19 - 50000.
 100000.
 59,764. added to 2/29
 40,236

Treasury Department,

BUREAU OF THE MINT,

Washington, D. C., February 28, 1888.

Sir:

In view of what now appears to be a redundancy of five-cent nickels, considering the amount you have on hand and the amount now at the Subtreasury at New York, it will be well for you to notify Mr. Wharton, as a matter of courtesy, that after the pending order is filled, under the terms of my letter of October 29, 1887, you will probably not, at least for some time, require any further supply of Nickel Blanks under the conditions of his supplementary contract.

Please state to me the total amount of Nickel Blanks called for by you under the pending contract with Wharton for fifty thousand pounds and his supplementary offer, accepted, for additional supplies, within the term of twelve months from the date of October 20, 1887, within the limit of two hundred and fifty thousand pounds.

Very respectfully,

John A. Windell
Director of the Mint.

Hon. Daniel M. Fox,
Superintendent U.S. Mint,
Philadelphia.

Treasury Department,
Bureau of the Mint,
Washington, D.C.,
February 28, 1888

Sir:

In view of what now appears to be a redundancy of five-cent nickels, considering the amount you have on hand and the amount now at the Subtreasury at New York, it will be well for you to notify Mr. Wharton, as a matter of courtesy, that after the pending order is filled, under the terms of my letter of October 29, 1887, you will probably not, at least for some time, require any further supply of Nickel Blanks under the conditions of his supplementary contract.

Please state to me the total amount of Nickel Blanks called for by you under the pending contract with Wharton for fifty thousand pounds and his supplementary offer, accepted, for additional supplies, within the term of twelve months from the date of October 20, 1887, within the limit of two hundred and fifty thousand pounds.

Very respectfully,
James P. Kimball
Director of the Mint.

Hon. Daniel M. Fox,
Superintendent U.S. Mint,
Philadelphia.

[Noted in the margins:]

[illegible] goods

12/6 – 500000
1/19 – 500000
100000
59764 deld. to 2/29
40236